I am already on record as stating that most of Posner's work consists of character assassination, so we are in agreement there. I differ slightly from some other researchers, as noted in my letter to Mark Zaid and Dennis Ford, in thinking that some of the errors made by Hill and others are not lies or faulty memory, but rather coaching from other researchers. SO, while I deplore the way in which some witnesses are treated, I do feel it is important to bring up the issue of their incorrect statements. At the same time, I feel that it is fair game to point out where Posner has not done his homework.
